

DREAMERS

Lyrics and Music © 2011 by Bill Roper

(Chorus)

Am7                    Em7                    G
Your dream is a good dream.
D                    C                    D
Your dream is fine.
Am7/G
I watch the water roll down the stream
G/D                    D                    C/G
And I know it'll never be mine.
G/D
You dream of the warm and green
Am7                    D                    C/G
And I dream of the dark and the cold.
G/D
You dream of the world you've seen
Am                    D                    Em7
And I just see the world growing old.

(Em7)                    Am7                    C/G                    D                    Em7
I know you're a dreamer - I see it when I look in your eyes.
Am7                    C/G                    D                    C/G
You tell me the things you see and I'm afraid you're telling me lies.
G                    Em7                    A
You speak of a world at peace, where man can live as one with the Earth,
C/G                    Am7                    C/G                    D
But the dream I see there in your eyes is gonna tie me to the world of my birth.

There's a beauty in balance, a rightness to a life on the land.
A place too for prudence, for not consuming all that you can.
And maybe it's wrong of me, thinking that your dreams are too small,
But all I see's the winter that is waiting there to follow the fall.

(Bridge)

C/G                    G                    D                    C/G
I dream of rocket ships, I dream of stars.
C/G                    G                    D                    Am
I dream of man expanding past this world of ours,
D                    C                    G
For in a finite world, all things must reach their end
Em                    Am7                    D
And waiting for the twilight's not a dream I can defend.

I know that you love this world, and you should know that I love her too.
I hate the balance that would keep me from the things I must do,
For I would break your peace and roll the dice to pay for the plan.
I'd gamble our poor world away to buy an infinite future for man.

(Chorus twice)

Am                    D
And I just see the world growing old.

I started this song at Marcon. For one reason or another, it took nearly a year to get around to finishing it.

That's ok. I think it was worth waiting for.
